“Accreditation is a positive process”

Accreditation is a non-governmental process for assessment of educational programs against rigorous education and industry standards. It provides evidence that the program meets or exceeds the challenges of continuous improvement such as: technological change, stimulating curriculum development and ongoing reviews of internal processes.

The environment of today's education

In today's global society our K-12 and higher education institutions are challenged to be more competitive. Our educational systems are called to be more vigilant in each institution's self-reflections, self-studies, and self-evaluations and we must establish and meet goals that keep us in the forefront as leaders in education.

The company was formed to assist education to meet the challenges of today's educational environment in a global economy. Over the last 20+ years I have seen a genuine need for a valuable consulting service network that serves the educational community with resources to accomplish excellence.

About the Organization

Our network is comprised of professionals in education such as: professors, deans, assessment directors, former deans, VP academic affairs and faculty that are examiners/evaluators from professional accreditation bodies. In addition some are Baldrige trained and examiners. Over 300 years of experience and growing.

Solution Statement

Together, with the network of experts and through a continuous improvement process, your institution will set goals, evaluate progress and meet any challenges that lie ahead of you. Accreditation is a positive vehicle by examining your process by which you will gain valuable insight into the strengths and weaknesses of your curriculum. At TTC Consulting, we will walk that continuous improvement path with you.
